Kamonohashi Project Product Catalogue

A Look At The Factory

The Kamonohashi Project has been working for the reduction of poverty and human trafficking. It provides livelihood for the poorest families in Cambodia through the Community Factory. Located 30 km away from Siem Reap - city of Angkor Wat, the non-profit organization is silently changing lives. The factory produces quality handicrafts out of the indigenous materials found in the villages of Cambodia. Workers, mostly from the poorest families, make handicrafts for their living.

Aside from providing quality handicrafts, The Community Factory has been an important livelihood for its locals. The factory is a community of families working together to make lives better. It also provides jobs and skills enhancement to women which allow them to be financially independent. This dramatically reduced the incidence of poverty, child prostitution and human trafficking. Now we are running our factory with both donation and sales profit but our goal is to run self-sufficiently. The factory sustains the operational costs of the organization. Today, our products are available in Cambodia and Japan. The factory is continuously improving its products to suit the Western market. We are pleased to invite you at our community!

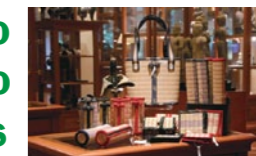

Transforming Cambodia's Natural Materials Into Works of Art

Cambodia has lots of natural materials such as rush leaf and palm leaf which are perfect for handicraft making. These unique qualities of these indigenous materials make our products very remarkable. Artisan workers transform these to beautiful handicrafts. Combining the colors, textures and thickness of these materials produces beautiful crafts.

A Challenge to Move Things to Greater Heights

At first glance, you might think that our products are just the same but behind it, families exert efforts and hard works. The Community Factory is continuously improving its products giving much attention to its design and quality. Professional Japanese designers and expert craftsmen provide inputs and trainings to ensure its competitiveness. As of now, the factory is producing great native handicrafts. In fact, most of our products are available at luxurious hotels in the country.

She says "I want them to finish their studies even though high school or get a college degree" .

"I want to work in the factory to let my sisters and brothers go to school"

Chanta and her family lives in a small house. She works daily in the Community Factory as a seamstress. Since basic necessities like potable water are not yet available in their village, she walks to the nearest water well daily. When her parents got divorced, Chanta was forced to drop out of school. She was a sixth grader back then. Being the eldest in a sibling of four, she was given the complex task of raising up her brothers and sisters.

She wants to give her siblings the best education. Her brother wants to be a doctor, while her sister dreams to be a teacher.

Before the factory, she worked in farms for money but is never enough. Her present work at the factory gives a sustainable living for their family which allows her to buy their basic necessities. Chanta regards her family so much and her family relies on her as well.
